

1. Diversity

Investing offshore, will give you access to a broader range of investment opportunities. For example, foreign investments, alternative jurisdictions and currency diversification, not to mention, a broader range of investment classes.

2. Tax Advantages

Tax is a very personal subject, depending on lots of different factors, so please seek professional tax advice before making any decisions.

That said, there are two main advantages to investing your money offshore. The combination of tax deferral and/or reductions can lead to the majority of investors benefitting from compound growth.

3. Asset Protection

We work hard for our money, so keeping it safe is important. Offshore jurisdictions offer economic stability seldom found onshore.

They also provide additional benefits such as, privacy, investor guarantees, and more control over risks.

4. Higher returns

If you can benefit from tax deferral then you will have the potential to receive greater returns offshore. In addition, you might be able to access greater rates of return and improved investment terms.

5. Flexibility

Dedicated offshore jurisdictions are less restrictive than onshore in many cases, resulting in greater investment flexibility for fund managers and their invested clients.
